

Brand Analysis

Sneha Raval (221064969)

Nike is promoting shoes Nike Air Max 270

This ad belongs to print media advertisement and more specifically a roadside billboard.

It also represents the spirit of the ad which can be described as positive, spirited and determined. The ad is a dynamic image of an athlete mid-jump while wearing Nike Air Max 270 with color-dominant appearance. The general tone is youthful as well as energetic.

Emotions Evoked:

- Energy: The confident posture and the cheery color blend give the image a liveliness of motion.
- Inspiration: They appeal to viewers and encourage more exercise and the desire to challenge one's abilities.
- Confidence: The flamboyance of the detailing and the massive logos display what can be described as power.

Target Audience:

- Demographics:
Age: 16-35 years old.
Gender: Both male and female audiences, but towards male audiences more so.
Income Level: Middle income.
Occupation: Students young people, working class individuals, athletes among others.
Location: Urban areas, globally.
- Psychographics:
Lifestyle: Active, fitness-oriented, fashion-conscious.
Interests: Fitness, jogging, complex training, sportswear.
Values: Prioritizes delivery of performance and perception of elegance, and recognition of the brand.

Interestingly, the distinctive message of the ad is that Nike Air Max 270 shoes are suitable for active, energetic, and cool users. Its objective is to offer urban and comfortable athletic shoes that are suitable for everyday and sports activities.

Ad's Effectiveness: All in all, it can be concluded that the specific advert has effectively transmitted the intended information. The contrast of the colors is arresting, and the posture and positioning of the male gives the product the feel of energy and vigor. The over-emphasis on placing the Nike logo also contributes to branding and establishing the image of the brand as an authority. The ad smartly focuses on Nike Air Max 270's features including its features and performance.

